Trading Fees

The following terms apply to all event contract markets on the exchange, apart from specific products listed below, which have their own fee schedule.

Trading fees are only charged for orders that are immediately matched with orders sitting on the orderbook. Trading fees are not charged for orders placed that are not immediately matched and are instead left as resting orders on the orderbook unless they are included in our “Maker Fees” section.

Trading fees are charged as a variable percentage fee of the expected earnings on an individual contract, which is calculated by multiplying the maximum potential earnings from the contract by the implied probability of making those earnings, or the price of the contract divided by $1. The current general fee charged for a trade in dollars is given by the following formula:

$$\text{fees} = \text{round up}(M \times 0.07 \times C \times P \times (1-P))$$

P = the price of a contract in dollars (50 cents is 0.5)

C = the number of contracts being traded

M = the multiplier for each contract (default is 1 unless otherwise indicated)

round up = rounds up such that the fee + positionCost is rounded to a cent

Maker Fees

$$\text{fees} = \text{round up}(M \times 0.0175 \times C \times P \times (1-P))$$

P = the price of a contract in dollars (50 cents is 0.5)

C = the number of contracts being traded

M = the multiplier for each contract (default is 0 unless otherwise indicated)

round up = rounds up such that the fee + positionCost is rounded to a cent

Please refer to <https://kalshi.com/fee-schedule> for scheduled upcoming fee changes.

Maker fees are charged for orders placed that are not immediately matched and are instead left as resting orders on the orderbook. These fees are only charged when a trade is ultimately executed, there are no fees associated with canceling a resting order.
